

Leak detection & prevention.

Recovering from the damage caused by burst and leaking water pipes is a traumatic and expensive experience. Loved items can never be replaced; lost time can never be restored. Therefore it makes sense to put in place preventative measures at a fraction of the cost of an escape of water claim.

Water leak damage

When a leak happens, it has the potential to cause an enormous amount of damage so it needs to be stopped quickly. But stopping the water supply can be difficult, especially if a building is unoccupied, where undetected leaks can cause irreparable damage.

With winters becoming more extreme and water leaks from burst pipes more common, home owners, commercial property managers, building service engineers and caretakers are turning to the Waterguard range of water leak detection equipment to protect against water leak damage.

All types of property

Protect any type of domestic, commercial, industrial or public building and its contents from the damage caused by a major water leak or burst in the delivery system.

Insurance benefits

The cost of fitting a Waterguard Water Leak Prevention system is often less than the excess to be paid before your insurer pays out. With many insurers insisting on water leak prevention in order to fully provide home owners and contents insurance and others offering lower excess premiums, it is financially advantageous at this time to compare home insurance asking your insurance provider about water leak detection today.
